Abstract:

Many people dream of seeing the world, but only a handful actually have the opportunity to do so. Youngsuk 'YS' Chi, Chairman of Elsevier - who has lived in over ten countries and now travels across six continents over two thirds of the year - is one of those lucky few. Drawing from his global knowledge, Mr. Chi will share lessons he's learned in his travels and will discuss how they've helped him address the many changes, challenges, and opportunities facing the publishing industry. While Mr. Chi has had a wide range of experiences over his unique professional journey, there has been one constant thread: the value of mentoring. Mr. Chi will discuss his own story of finding a personal mentor, why he mentors over 100 young students and professionals today, and how building relationships can shape a career in the most rewarding and sometimes unexpected ways.
